The members of the St. Clair County Farmers' Institute will be glad to know that Yale is booked for a rousing meeting during the coming winter. James Dunn, the County Secretary, has left bulletin at this office, and we invite farmers and all interested to call and obtain a copy; without money and without price.

Samuel Rochefort, of Bad Axe, is spending a few days with friends in Yale. As a token of the weather, soil, and other good things they can have as far north as Huron county, in this exceptional fall, he brought to this office a raspberry stem covered with blossoms, berries forming, and the ripe fruit upon it. It looks as though the weather this fall was in favor of fresh berries for Thanksgiving.

Having rented his farm W. D. Sayles will offer at public auction, on Saturday, Nov. 3d, at 1 p. m. at his farm four miles west and one-half mile south of Old Brockway: horses, milch cows, cattle, hogs, corn in the crib, fodder, farm implements, buggy, bobs, harness, and such a vast number of other things that you cannot fail of getting what you need. Attend the sale, wink at Auctioneer Wills, and the rest will do itself.

The young ladies of Elder McCall's congregation originated a quiet but very successful surprise which they executed last Friday night. Having circulated the word, a large company of guests stormed the parsonage, and the best of times, surrounded with a bounteous feast, and when the time came, presented Mrs. McCall with an elegant sewing machine. For the present, as well as the pleasant company, the family are very grateful.
